Privacy Policy

1. If there's anything you're unsure about in this Privacy Policy, feel free to contact our data protection officer at UK.DPOBusinessEnquiries@Experian.com.
2. We will use the information you provide for associated administration purposes.
3. The details you submit on the contact form including your e-mail address and telephone number will be used to contact you about our future events, relevant news, products and services which may be of interest to you. You will only be contacted by Experian. If you would prefer not to receive such communications, you may unsubscribe at any time
4. Data protection laws require that, where we process your personal data, we must satisfy at least one prescribed condition for processing as set out in law. In the United Kingdom, we can use personal information where the benefits of doing it are not outweighed by the interests or fundamental rights or freedoms of individuals. The law calls this the "Legitimate Interests" condition for processing. This is the condition we rely on for the purposes set out in section 2 and 3 of this privacy policy.
5. We will only keep your personal data for as long as there is a continuing need to do so. Contact information such as names and addresses are kept while there is a continuing need for us to have it. We will keep your data for 12 months after your last engagement with us. If you opt out of our B2B marketing communications, we will retain your preferences to ensure you do not receive any B2B marketing communications in the future.
6. Data protection laws give you a number of rights in relation to the personal data held by us about you. These are summarised below.
 - a. If you think any personal data we hold about you is wrong or incomplete, you have a right to challenge it. Whilst we do not have a right to update any personal data about you without the permission of the organisation that supplied it to us, we will investigate your concern, check it with the originating organisation and confirm its accuracy. If it is wrong, we will update it accordingly.

- b. You have the right to object to us processing your personal data. This right is not an absolute right and, in some circumstances, despite your objection, we will be permitted to continue processing it.
 - c. In some cases you can also ask us to restrict how we use your personal data. As above, this right is not an absolute one and, in some circumstances (e.g for reasons of public interest, to protect the rights of another person, or to establish, exercise or defend legal claims), we will be entitled to continue using your personal data.
 - d. To exercise any of these rights or to find out if they apply, please contact UK.DPOBusinessEnquiries@Experian.com
7. If you have any concerns about how Experian processes your personal data, you can refer your concerns to the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO), the body that regulates the handling of personal data in the UK. You can contact them by: -
- a. Phone on 0303 123 1113
 - b. Writing to them at Information Commissioner's office, Wycliffe House, Water Lane, Wilmslow, SK9 5AF
 - c. Going to their website at www.ico.org.uk
